[COMMUNICATED.] Meral Education.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., Jan. 17, 1871. MESSRS. EDITORS:-As you are taking such deep interest in the cause of educathe rising generation of Tennessee, I trust you will feel it no less important to the great end you have in view, to welcome to the columns of the CHRONICLE an occasional article from the friends of the Sunuay School. While the day school seeks the intellectual culture of the youth, the Sabbath School aims at the moral and religious welfare of the young. "Knowledge is power," but it may be power for evil as well as good. If the sentiment be true "that a man is unsafe as a citizen, up to the measure o we secure to every child in the State, belife's active arena, a sound and thorough knowledge, with that high moral training which will fit him to go forth to act well nis part in society.

That distinguished French writer, De Tocqueville, in his wise observations on America and American institutions, remarks, "The halls of science are the temples of Republican forms of government." To-day, while the German army is thundering at the gates of the mistress of the fashionable world, is it not well for us, as a people, to inquire why this nation, with all her boasted refinement, cannot cope with her rival power? Is not the answer in the fact of the utter ignorance and moral corruption of the masses? France has no free school system, and no Sabbath Schools, hence her effeminacy and want of mere brute force. DeWitt Clinton has sagely remarked that the Sunday School is one of the three great moral powers by which the world is to be moved. It is gratifying to know that this power is being feit in Tennessec. When a good and complete free school system shall have resulted from this agitation of public sentiment, with the growing interest in the Sunday School cause, may we not hope for a rich and ripe harvest from this early sowing, to wave in golden beauty over this wide-spread field of intellectual and moral culture, and that Tennessee shall yet rank among the first of the States forming our national galaxy. I see in this morning's daily issue of the CHRONICLE reference is made to the recent action of Greene county in the cause of education. She ranks among the first in taking her stand in behalf of free schools, as she has been wont to do in the interests of Sunday Schools. In a recent visit to that county, we found the people awake to the three great topics which elicit public attention at this time. First, the formation of East Tennessee into a new State. Second, the levying taxes to support free schools. The third, but not the least, the consideration of that all important question: how can they best promote the cause of Sabbath Schools, and reach the neglected little ones. They resolved by their action that the first step was to give of their means to aid in gathering all the youth into the Bible school. Then to go forward with more devotion, greater zeal, and higher hopes for the year to come. It was the privilege of your correspond-ent to be present at the Sabbath School Convention of the new and wide-awake county of Hambles, held on the 7th inst., at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The welcome address to the convention was most ably delivered by Miss D. S. Mc-Chister, showing conclusively that lady teachers in Sunday Schools can also act well their part even in Sabbath School Conventions. I enclose a copy of her adthe interests of Sabbath Schools. The Convention then adjourned to hold its next quarterly meeting at "Union School House," on the first Saturday in April

The last item I wish to notice in this article is that of a contribution from the friends of schools in this city, and particularly one from the Union Sunday School Convention, W. Karnes, Superintendent, consisting of 32 rabbits, 11 chickens, 10 quails, 15hs bacon, 34 bushels apples, and $1.00 in cash, which resulted in giving $10.62 to aid and forward the good work of giving the children the blessings of the Sabbath School. We always supposed that the office of policeman was one of dignity and responsibility, but had no idea that dignity would strike in so soon, until hearing of the present case.
